Subject: Failure to Act on Directed Energy Harms and Potential Civilian Exposure – Complaint Against Agency Negligence

To:

- Inspector General – FCC
- Inspector General - EPA

Date: October 13, 2025

From:

- Direct Energy Weapons Agency, Inc. / Direct Energy Weapons Police (DEW Police)
- [REDACTED]
- c/o Ms. Michael Wright-Hodges

I. Summary of Complaint

I am submitting this complaint to report on behalf of more than 300 Victims nationwide of what we believe is a pattern of serious neglect by FCC in detecting and responding to unauthorized or criminal use of directed energy technologies that are harming civilians. I believe the agencies have failed in its statutory duty to investigate or prevent unlawful use of energy/radiation devices against the public, and that this failure may constitute negligence or mismanagement.

II. Details of the Incident(s)

More than 300 Victims have experienced and documented anomalous health symptoms consistent with directed energy exposure (Havana Syndrome) (examples: sudden pressure in the head, neurological disruption, directional pain). These incidents are ongoing during the day and moreso overnight.

These Victims have contacted local authorities and federal offices, including EPA, FBI and local police, but have not received any substantive investigation or response.

Despite the growing number of reports from civilians and government personnel (including those described under "Havana Syndrome" or Anomalous Health Incidents), there is no current process by which civilians can request or receive electromagnetic spectrum testing or field investigation for energy-based assaults.

III. Negligence and Oversight Failure

The FCC, as the agency responsible for regulating and monitoring the electromagnetic spectrum, should have protocols for detecting unauthorized or criminal use of high-energy RF or microwave emitters. The EPA, responsible for non-ionizing radiation exposure oversight, should have health safety mechanisms and environmental protocols in place.

I allege that both agencies are neglecting their duties by:

- Failing to offer detection or exposure-testing services to affected civilians.
- Ignoring repeated public reports of directed-energy harm.
- Not creating regulatory standards or detection tools for energy-based threats despite known risks.
- Not informing nor coordinating with law enforcement or public health authorities when such reports are made.

IV. What I Request

I request that the Inspector General:

- Provide us with a case or confirmation number for this report.
- Investigate their agency either the FCC and EPA have failed to act on reports of directed energy assaults.
- Determine whether there is a breach of public duty to respond to potential misuse of electromagnetic devices.
- Recommend agency policy changes that would allow civilians to request spectrum monitoring or home and environmental testing in suspected cases of energy-based threats.

V. Attachments – Upon request

- Medical records (with sensitive data redacted) showing symptom patterns.
- Incident log with dates/times/locations.
- Copies of any emails, letters, or complaints already submitted to agencies.
- Screenshots, recordings, or environment readings (if available).

VI. Declaration

I declare that the information provided is true and accurate to the best of my knowledge.

Ms. Michael Wright-Hodges

Sincerely,

Ms. Michael Wright-Hodges
